Marylander Dazed, Not Murdered.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., July 1.—William H. Medford, clerk of the Dorchester county court and socially prominent, who was thought to have been murdered Thursday night, was found late last night wandering in a dazed condition on a road twelve miles from here. Medford's automobile previously had been found with his coat, cap, collar and cravat in the bottom of the car. It is thought Medford was stunned by his machine ran into an obstruction and that he wandered away dazed.

URGES SIX D. C. REFORMS.

Citizens' Federation Asks Hearing Before House Committee.

Six important legislative reforms proposed for the District of Columbia are to be urged before the House District committee within the next few days by the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

The federation has requested the committee to give it a hearing on the desirability of establishing up-to-date firemen's and policemen's pension systems, amalgamating the crossing policemen with the regular force, enacting the Tinkham bill relative to special street assessments, conducting annual instead of triennial assessments, increasing the rate of interest allowable under the so-called "loan shark" law, and enacting the bill for true consideration in deeds.

All of these reforms have been advocated for some time by the federation and represent in the opinion of that body, the District's most urgent needs. The fact that police and firemen's pensions head the list is taken as an indication of how much Washington citizens desire the passage of legislation that will adequately provide for disabled and superannuated employees of these branches of the local government.

service. In comparison with other cities the National Capital, it is contended, makes a poor showing in the fire and police pension matters. Bills to remedy this condition are now pending with the House District committee, and the federation is hopeful that it may get them reported out and approved by Congress during the present session.
